The Cunningham 4-H Club held their annual club tour on Sunday, July 21. This year we had two farm stops prior to holding our meeting at the Cunningham Community Center. Our first stop was the Bill and Jennifer Neywick farm. Member Ava Neywick gave a brief talk about their horses, chickens, ducks, and goats. She even demonstrated how to milk the nanny

Jason and Megan Osner's farm was our next stop. We tasted homemade sand plum and blackberry jellies, pickled beets, and sweet pickles courtesy of Megan. We also picked delicious wild blackberries and visited a rare artesian well. We learned that the water from an artesian well reaches the surface from the natural pressure of the aquifer from which it is piped. The well runs yeararound and maintains a constant temperature. Club members even tasted the delicious water flowing from the well.

During our meeting, each member discussed their fair entries and many were able to show their completed projects. The committee that put together our Cookies for College jar displayed their efforts, which will hold the nine different bar cookies that members have prepared for the auction. We discussed fair cleanup and acquired volunteers for concession stand work shifts, concession stand pies, and Buyers Meal desserts. Three members gave talks. Kane Reid discussed his terrarium, Keyonna Huffman shared a poem, and Ty Schultz gave a special show-n-tell.

The meeting concluded with hot dogs, chips, and ice cream bars. Members then enjoyed relief from the heat with a party at the Cunningham pool. Our club does not hold an August meeting due to members being exhausted from the fair. Our final meeting for the 4-H year is scheduled for Sept 8.

Tiny Tots Day Care Visits Fire Station

Monday July 22 Tiny Tots went to visit Harold Stark at the Cunningham Fire Department. Harold showed the children the different types of fire trucks and explained their purpose in different types of fires. He also showed the children how they can see people in smoke situations by using a devise that shows their body heat.

The kid's favorite part was getting to use the water hose and trying on the helmet they wear during a fire.

A big thank you to Harold for letting us visit. (More photos can be found on page 4)

YEARS AGO IN The Cunningham Clipper

W. A. BRADLEY, EDITOR

August 7, 1969

A search for the "State Lake Snake" has been organized and will be held this coming Sunday afternoon, August 10, starting at 2:00 o'clock in the Bill Milford pasture along U.S. Highway 54, 10 miles east of Cunningham.

For several years the rumor has persisted that a large python-like snake has been roaming the marshes around Kingman County State Lake. Many stories have been told about its bodysize and length, but no one has been able to give a very definite description, other than it is extremely large and black.

The hunt has been organized by a group of Kingman men, headed by Dr. N. E. Allison, and assisted by Bert Langley, Mike Harner, Harry Hamilton, and Ira Hart. Harold Walker, Kingman jeweler, has designed a trophy to be awarded to the person catching the largest snake alive during the hunt.

The group says everyone over 14 years of age is welcome to join in the hunt. No firearms will be permitted, but persons are welcome to use horses in the hunt.

August 6, 1964 Nashville catcher Chris McGuire overthrew third enabling Dennis Theis to score and give Cunningham an up-hill extra-inning American Legion team game, 7-6, here Tuesday night. Dennis Theis hurled the entire game for Cunningham, with Don Kitson doing the catching.

Cunningham's slopitch softball team captured second place in the district slo-pitch softball tournament at Zenda last week and qualified to enter the state slo-pitch softball tournament to be held in Garden City, starting tomorrow night (Friday).

Cunningham's roster for the state tournament includes the 15 "regulars," K.C. Jones, Dean Mantooth, Harry DeArmond, Bob Meyers, Kent Williamson, Paul Rohlman, Jack Meyers, Jerry Meyers, Bob Leiter, Jack Vermillion, Walter Becker, Merle McCune, Joe Theis, Don Becker, and D. B. Miller, and two "pick-up" players, Dave Tritt of Pratt and Paul Miller of Zenda.

August 6, 1959 – The Cunningham Lions Club will sponsor the appearance of Cliff Dunham's Donkey Show at a Donkey Softball game in the City Park next Thursday evening, August 13, at 8:00

Cunningham has not had a donkey softball game for almost 20 years - the last one being played on the softball field when it was located west of the present City Building.

Admission is adults 75c and children 35c, with the proceeds going toward further development of the ball park.

I bought) for $18.00 We all paid for our purchases and headed to Simply Southwest. I bought a lemonade and sat down to inspect my bee wrap. It had a waxy feel to it. Somewhat stretchy. The woman at the store had told me she stretches hers quite a bit. It has to be washed in cold water with a mild dish soap. It needs to air dry. Then you fold it up and put it in a drawer or basket. It lays nice and flat. The wrap cannot be used in the oven or microwave or around heat. And it should not be used to wrap raw meat. It clings to the bowl or plate that you use the wrap to cover. It can be used to freeze food as well. It should last about one year.

As I was drinking my lemonade and reading about my new purchase, an elderly couple came in and sat at the table next to me. The gentleman went to purchase some drinks, and I walked over and showed the lady my purchase. We talked a bit about the product, and when she asked, I told her where I bought it. She thought she would have to go and check it out. When my friends were done shopping, we sat for a bit longer, then headed out the door. We stopped in at T & W Meats because Vicky bought a soup bone there last summer, and we checked for another, but there weren't any in the freezer. We visited a few other little gift shops there on Main Street, visited with the sales people, and finally decided it was time to head for Cunningham. My story is going to need to be continued yet again, as I don't have the room to explain the next part of our adventure, because we did not go straight to Cunningham.

We were just west of Cairo when Vicky remembered something we talked about a year and half ago, and she wondered if we could take a look. So we did.

MOCR Restoration: Full Details

History Overview

While history often recognizes the astronauts who became the first humans to walk on the Moon, equally noteworthy are the people of Mission Control, without whom the missions would not have been possible.

- With less computing power than a present-day cell phone at their disposal, Apollo-era flight controllers in Houston were able to safely launch humans into space, and even land them on our nearest celestial neighbor.
- The Historic Mission Control Center at NASA's Johnson Space Center (JSC) was home to the planning, monitoring and command controls that were essential to America's early human spaceflight program.
- It housed the people responsible for the success of early manned spaceflight missions, including the Gemini, Mercury, Apollo, and Soyuz missions in the 1960s and 1970s, as well as Shuttle-era missions in the early 1990s.

National Historic Landmark Status

Due to its critical contributions to human spaceflight in America, Building 30, Christopher C. Kraft, Jr. Mission Control Center, became a National Historic Landmark in 1985.

The Historic Apollo Mission Control Center was decommissioned in the 1990s. The last mission controlled from the room was STS-53, a seven-day mission on space shuttle Discovery, in 1992.

In 2015 it became a "threatened" landmark after its condition declined from years of use and increased foot traffic.

Historic Apollo Mission Control

Restoration Process Restoration Team:

tory, the Historic Mission Control Center has been restored to its original condition and appearance. JSC worked with Space Center Houston, its official visitor center, and the Apollo Flight Operations Association to undertake a complete restoration. JSC has consulted with the State Historic Preservation Officer, the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation, the National Park Service, and other interested parties in accordance with the National Historic Preservation Act. The contractor team includes prime contractor Ayuda Companies and contractors GRAVitate, LLC; Stern and Bucek Architects; Cosmsopshere; Basic Builders; Audio Video Guys; Source Historical Services; Textile Preservation Services of Texas; Spectra Flooring; Mattiza's Custom Upholsteries; Steven L. Pine Art Conservation Consulting; +Carma, LLC; Bell & McCoy Lighting and Controls; Steelcase; Koroseal Interior Products; Mary Welch Weaving, and JSC Facilities Contractor

After years of making his-

Apollo-Era Restoration: The project was conceived in 2013. Construction began in November 2018, and was completed in July 2019. The restored Historic Mission Control features authentic consoles used to monitor nine Gemini, all Apollo Moon missions, and 21 space shuttle missions. These missions include the flight of Apollo 11 that first landed humans on the Moon, the Apollo 13 mission that brought three astronauts home safely after a heroic effort to recover from an explosion on the way to the Moon, and the conclusive Apollo 17 mission in which Americans vowed to return once again. Funding: The $5 million project was funded with a generous $3.1 million dollar donation from the City of Webster and an additional $400,000 to match a Kickstarter Campaign run by Space Center Houston which raised $525,000 in donations. JSC added over $1million to complete the project

A Full Restoration: Based on the 2015 Historic Furnishings Report and Visitor Experience Plan by the National Parks Service, the extensive restoration restored original furniture and finishes to return the control center to its classic appearance during a pivotal time in American history. As finished, it is complete with the authentic consoles, mission medallions, upholstery, seats, wallpaper and carpet, all of which have been either cleaned and restored to their original condition, or recreated using original samples. Digitized color 16-mm film taken during the Apollo 11 mission has allowed restoration experts to identify otherwise unknown artifacts and colors as they were experienced in the Apollo-era control room, including the original column markings, paint colors, and even coffee mugs at flight controllers'

consoles. Control Room

In the center of the Historic Mission Control Center is the iconic Mission Operations Control Room, often referred to as the "MOCR," with the consoles used by the various flight controllers.

- Consoles The consoles are being restored, not painted. All consoles were restored to the Apollo-era – specifically to mission - Apollo 15— which represents the apex of technological achievement of the Apollo missions. They will be arranged in the configuration that reflects the Apollo-era use of the room.
- Paint and Wallpaper: Sheetrock walls are being repainted to match the original paint colors. Any original paint sections found were cleaned and restored. The same company that printed the original wallpaper in the 1960s found the original wallpaper print roll and reprinted a supply sufficient for the restoration. Any original wallpaper pieces found remaining on the walls were painstakingly cleaned and left in place.
- Personal and Utilitarian Artifacts: Personal and utilitarian artifacts can be seen in the control room, recreating the historic scene during active Apollo missions. These artifacts including chairs, clothing, coffee cups, ashtrays, flight manuals, headsets, books, pencils, pencil sharpeners, clocks, tape dispensers, maps and charts, are original period pieces that have either been found on site at JSC or procured elsewhere. Original documents are being copied for display.

• Displays and Clocks: The large displays that provided situational awareness information for flight controllers on the west wall of the MOCR have been restored with appropriate projection technology to recreate Apollo-era use of the screens. There were nine timing screens. Five of the original screens have been restored and four were procured from the companies that originally made the screens. The Apollo 11 mission mechanical clocks were removed years ago so projectors will recreate the mission clocks.

Simulation and Recovery Control Rooms Adjacent to the Mission Operations Control Room are two key support rooms: the Simulation Control Room, often referred to as the "Sim Room," where controllers conducted simulations to prepare for missions, and the Recovery Operations Control Room, where staff and U.S. Navy officials coordinated recovery efforts after splashdown.

Simulation Room: The consoles were restored and arranged in fully original configuration of historic consoles. The last remaining "selectomatic transitube" (pneumatic tube, or p-tube) station has also been restored.

Recovery Room: The location of this room is being used today for mission operations. A photo of what the room once looked like is visible where the window into the room was located.

Visitors Viewing Area

At the back of the Mission Operations Control Room (behind the mission controllers) is a wall with large windows that separates the MOCR from the Visitors Viewing Area, where dignitaries, guests and the press could observe the activities of the mission controllers without causing disturbances or disruptions. This is the location from which visitors will experience the restored control room as they tour NASA.

Seating and Carpeting: All theater-style seating and carpeting is original and was repaired and cleaned. New mechanisms and cushions were replaced in the chairs to give them new life. The original phone booths are being restored including the perforated metal acoustical wall covering and black rotary dial phones.

Summary Projection Room "Bat Cave"

At the front of the room are large group display screens; behind these screens is the Summary Display Projection Room, sometimes referred to as the "Bat Cave." Here maps and images were projected onto the screens, many with illuminated, electromechanical plotter overlays.

Projection System: The projection system is restored with a modern replica system. Original artifacts including the eidophors, projection support equipment and the slide projector have been placed in their original location in the Bat Cave.

Kansas Association of Wheat Growers to Hold Annual Meeting August 14

By Peyton Powell, Kansas WheatCommunications Intern

MANHATTAN, Kan. - The Kansas Association of Wheat Growers will hold its annual membership meeting on August 14, 2019, in conjunction with High Plains Journal's Sorghum U -Wheat U event.

The annual meeting will begin at 7:00 a.m., in the Fire Club Room at the Kansas Star Event Center, 777 Kansas Star Drive in Mulvane.

Grower members will discuss and debate the policies of the Kansas Association of Wheat Growers and will vote on renewing KAWG Resolutions. They will hear an update on KAWG activities and priorities, as well as the announcement of a membership referral program that can earn members some unique wheat gear while building grassroots support for the issues facing wheat farmers in Topeka

At the conclusion of the KAWG annual meeting, members are invited to join other wheat and grain sorghum producers to stay for the Sorghum U - Wheat U educational event, which features breakout sessions on grain sorghum and wheat. There is no charge to attend the Sorghum U -Wheat U event, and lunch will be provided.

and Capitol Hill.

Wheat and sorghum producers can take home real-world, practical solutions that can have a definite influence on their bottom line. With educational sessions targeted to wheat growers, sorghum growers and sessions for both, producers can develop a strategy that will allow them to take control and plan for profit. This event will also have CEU credits offered. Having multiple sessions and speakers filled with knowledge, this event will benefit any farmer that attends.

Registration begins at 8:30 a.m., with the program starting at 9 a.m. During the welcome session, attendees will hear from a panel of farmers as well as the Kansas Wheat and Kansas Grain Sorghum organizations.

During Breakout Blocks 1 and 2, farmers will be able to choose from the following four sessions: Making "Cents" of Blockchain Technology, Make Cropping Systems Work For You, Lessons in Wheat Production and Risk Management for Sorghum Producers.

These blocks will repeat, so farmers will have the opportunity to attend two of the four. Kansas State University Wheat and Forages Extension Specialist Romulo Lollato will present the session on wheat production.

Over lunch, Arlan Suderman, chief commodities economist with INTL FCStone, will present the keynote address on "Market Intelligence for the Future." Market intelligence helps producers plan ahead for influences on grain markets that are out of a producer's control. Suderman has years of experience working with farmers and helping them understand the markets. From late planting problems this spring to trade wars to African Swine Fever, Suderman will give producers an outlook that will help them make sound decisions. Following Suderman's presentation, John Lawrence will be speaking on "IntelliFarms: Grow with a Purpose."

Topics for Breakout Blocks 3 and 4 include Planning with Your Lender, Making the Grain Chain Work for You, Risk Management for Wheat Producers and Growing Forage Sorghum for Profit. The event will wrap up at 3:00 p.m., following the IntelliFarms $20,000 Giveaway.

For more information on the speakers and topics and to register for this free event, go to wheatu.

Kansas Wheat Farmer Testifies on Importance of Grain Inspection System for U.S. Export Markets

By Jordan Hildebrand MANHATTAN, Kan. - A Kansas wheat farmer testified in front of the U.S. Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry on "Perspectives on Reauthorization of the U.S. Grain Standards Act" on Wednesday, July 31, 2019.

Brian Linin, a farmer from Goodland and member of the Kansas Association of Wheat Growers, provided testimony about the importance of the Federal Grain Inspection Service on behalf of wheat farmers.

"The farmer works to provide the highest quality product that feeds the world. FGIS helps ensure that our customers are receiving the exact specifications that they need," said Linin. "We've provided a lot of information on milling quality, the inspection services and our production processes to our buyers giving them more confidence in our high quality product that other countries can't always ensure."

The U.S.'s grain inspection system, authorized through the Grain Standards Act, provides certainty to our foreign customers that all U.S. grains and oilseeds have been inspected and certified by an independent agency. This service is a great, unique value to U.S. commodities and is an important enhancement for our products on the competitive world market.

"As a grower of winter wheat, among other crops, I wanted to be with you here to serve as a voice for fellow wheat farmers across the country about the importance of maintaining a smooth export system," said Linin. "It's been a very difficult few years for farmers. Having a functioning and respected grain inspection system has enabled the U.S. to be a reliable exporter and facilitate continued demand for our commodities. When we've seen disruptions to our grain inspection system in the past it has resulted in billions of dollars of lost value throughout the production chain."

The Grain Standards Act serves a critical role in exporting grains and oilseeds, including U.S. wheat, of which about 50% is exported each year. U.S. wheat exports increased despite bearish factors such as a strong U.S. dollar, uncertainty about U.S. trade policies, and difficult inland transportation logistics. A properly functioning grain inspection system

"The grain inspection system is one that is valued by our overseas customers and adds value to our commodities," Linin reported. "Foreign customers can be assured that an independent agency has certified shipments to meet the grade requirements specified in a contract. This certainty and reliability has helped wheat and other U.S. commodities to grow our export markets and serves as a significant advantage of purchasing U.S. wheat versus wheat from other origins."

Other testimonies for the committee were provided by Tom Dahl, president of the American Association of Grain Inspection and Weighing Agencies, Bruce Sutherland, member of the board of directors for the National Grain and Feed Association and Nick Friant, chairman of the Grades & Inspections Committee North American Export Grain Association. For the Brian Linin's full written testimony, please visit kansaswheat.org.

Artist Statement

"My recent work, the Landshape Series, evolved from a lifelong interest in abstract, non-representational American painting. Although my formal training years centered around Realism, and the onset of Photo Realism, I never lost an interest in abstract composition. I found however, that nonrepresentation brought more frustration to me than successful pieces of art. As a result, I find myself returning to a more natural arena of painting recognizable images in an abstract arrangement of elements. I like to refer to these images as abstract realism, or laborintensive abstraction."

A Letter to the Editor

Dearest Roberta,

"Fill your paper with the breathings of your heart," a quote from William Wordsworth. Last week, you certainly did! What's not for me to love---God, country, and mention of my daughter, Hannah, her husband, Tyler, and my newest granddaughter, Lucy!

I wished I would have been there to hear your reading of "In Flanders Field!" In my mind's eye I was! Some people cry when they see other's cry, I take it a step further and cry when I read about other's crying when they see someone cry!!! We grew up on the heels of WW2, the Korean War, and in the midst of the Vietnam War. Remember the songs that Mrs. Bradley had us sing in music class---"This Land is Your Land," and "Where Have All the Flowers Gone?" I believe that we were influenced by a sense of patriotism stemming from the experiences of our parents and

My children grew up listening to and reading biographies of heroes of the faith, many of them military leaders, such as George Washington, Robert E. Lee, Teddy Roosevelt, Douglas Mac Arthur just to name a few. We are a family that loves patriotism!

My daughter, Hannah, whom you mentioned in last week's paper, earned a degree in journalism a couple of years ago from WSU. She, along with our other children, have an avid interest in history. When she was about 12 years old she took an essay that a young man had written about my dad's experience in WW2. This young man was a neighbor of my parents, and had interviewed my dad for a writing assignment in school. My mom had saved a copy of the interview. Hannah took the essay and used the facts, to write a first person journal entry, as if my dad had written it himself. I am so grateful that the chain of events transpired so that we have a written account of some of what my dad went through! I thought the Courier readership would enjoy it and there may be a few WW2 veterans that can relate. Just maybe it will prompt other veterans to share their stories as well. I hope so! Hannah's recount of my dad's story is as follows:

Dear Diary,

After four long years, I am finally sailing for home! I can't wait to get home to eat some good home-cooked meals instead of those nasty C-rations! I haven't written in here since before the war, so I'll start at the beginning. I went to join the army on January 9, 1941. I got my basic training in Fort Sill, Oklahoma. Then I went to Panama for near a year. One day in Panama my buddy, Stockton, and I were on a little outpost there in the jungle, and there was a sloth way up high in a tree. Stockton bet me that I couldn't shoot it out of the tree, but I did! Well, they brought us our chow once a day, and they had a little old trail going up there. We stretched the sloth out on a stick, with its arms out and pulled it back on a limb. When the guys got right there, we swung the sloth down right in front of them! I thought we were going to get beat up over that one! Then it was off to Australia! I saw some natives in New Guinea, they wore them grass skirts. They were pretty backward people! Australia was a good place. We were right there with the Aussie soldiers a lot of the time. I was in Sydney and Brisbane. That was our staging area getting ready to go through the islands. Then came the real combat in the Southwest Pacific Islands. One battle I was in in the Lingayon Gulf in the Philippines, was across the peninsula from Manila. I was on one ridge and the Japs on another. I was directing the mortar fire, with a telephone line from the troops to me. The Japs saw me and started shooting at me; they damaged the telephone line, so I went to see what was wrong. I was laying with my feet crossed. If I had been standing, that would have been the end of me! I didn't even know that I had been shot at the time, there was so much going on! Then I felt blood squishing in my boot. One piece of shrapnel went clear through my boot, another was stuck in the heel of my boot, and the other is still in my heel today! When I took off my boot, my foot immediately swelled so that I could not get it back on. There were some first-aid people nearby.

We started back to the coast, which was about two miles away. We got there and the Japs were dive-bombing the ships! They had a hospital ship in the harbor, but because there was so much bombing going on, they had to lay down a smoke screen through the whole harbor. We then sailed out of there that night, back to New Guinea, which was about 3,000 miles away. I earned the Purple Heart medal for that mission. They offered me a promotion of First Sergeant and tried their best to get me to stay, but I had had enough of it! I was finally discharged on June 15, 1945.

That concludes Hannah's retelling of the highlights of my dad's,(Keith Cornelius) service to our country. If he were alive today, I would tell him how proud I am of him and how much I appreciate all that he did for our country! We children heard the "sloth story" retold many times throughout our childhood. However, it was the only war story that Dad told. I am sure the rest was just too painful! Thank you to all veterans young and old who are out there reading my dad's story! May God bless you all richly for the sacrifices that you have made! I would like to conclude with one of my favorite verses: "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord; and the people whom He hath chosen for His own inheritance."

> Your friend, Karen Eck
